

Director of Music Ministries, Sara Hall, has been on staff at Georgetown First since 2006. She holds a degree in Music Education from Georgetown College. Prior to her work at Georgetown First, Sara taught public school chorus, gave private vocal lessons, and had a piano studio at home. Sara is the widow of the Reverend Doctor Larry B. Hall, who was a United Methodist Minister, and has 2 children and 2 grandchildren. Her hobbies in addition to singing and playing piano include reading, and cross stitch needlework.

Sara has spent her entire life being involved in some way with church music ministry. She is committed to serving God through music, and she views her talent as God's gift to her so she may share with others. Sara directs the Chancel Choir weekly, and also leads the Glory Ringers (handbell choir).
